

Contents

Foreword	3
Introduction	7
Talking	10
Listening	11
Chapter one	13
Current research and past approaches	13
Language development	13
Home language	13
Second language learning	14
Teacher talk	14
Approaches	15
Traditional approaches	15
Whole-language and process approaches	15
Genre approach	16
Chapter two	17
Social purposes	17
Social contexts	18
Subject matter	19
Roles and relationships	19
Mode of communication	20
Mode continuum	21
Composing and interpreting texts	23
1. Critical understanding	23
2. Language features	24
3. Flexibility	24
Chapter three	25
Teaching talking and listening	25
Explicit teaching of talking and listening	26
Modelled teaching	27
Guided teaching	28
Independent teaching strategies	29
What to teach	29
Where do teachers begin?	30

Purpose and audience	30
Types of talk	31
Talking to learn	31
Talking as process	31
Talk as performance	31
Interpreting oral texts	32
Purpose and audience	32
Critical understandings	33
Roles of the listener	33
Providing a balanced approach	34
Talking and listening, reading, viewing and writing	35
Building the field	34
Analysis	35
Joint construction	35
Independent construction	36
Providing opportunities for students to learn through talking and listening	36
Chapter four	37
Whole-school approach	37
(a) Resources	38
(b) Teachers' knowledge and understandings	38
(c) Students' achievements	38
Stage or faculty planning	39
Class planning	39
Meeting the needs of diverse learners	40
Extending talented speakers and listeners	40
Supporting students experiencing difficulties	41
Students who study by distance education	41
Developing links between home and school	41
Home language	43
Chapter five	45
Assessing students' talking and listening achievements	45
What to assess	47
Consistency in teachers' judgements	48
How does talk improve?	48